a Fanoria

When checking out websites of the many Paranormal Investigators, you are sure to find a list of equipment used by the team for investigations. Here at Greater Arlington Paranormal we are no different. For any investigation, the equipment used should be considered as part of the team. Personal experiences from an investigation are great but without any collected evidence, those experiences are simply stories. However, if you have some physical evidence to present alongside those experiences, it's a different result.

For those that have been investigating the paranormal for any length of time knows that there are advancements made with the equipment used during investigations. Just think of the days that you used a 35mm and had to wait for the film to be developed. Recording devices have come a long way and while I never investigated using a reel to reel tape recorder, there was a time that we relied only on the large full-sized cassette recorder for any EVP work. The digital age changed all of this. And if you watch an early episode of Ghost Hunters (debuted October 2004) and compare it to any of the shows on now, the equipment used continues to evolve.

While we would all like to have an unlimited budget for the latest equipment, like the investigators on television, one doesn't have to break the bank to start investigating. Various websites offer some of the basic equipment at very reasonable prices.

The lists below represent our equipment at the time of this publication. We are always looking for new and improved equipment that can help us conduct a more thorough investigation.

If you have questions or comments about equipment, please feel free to contact us.
